BABY ELEPHANT

Menagerie of Barnum & Bailey Circus Is Full of Interesting Features.

SHOW WITH THE MONEY

MANY FASCINATING ACTS, WITH A LEADING THRILLER.

All of Salt Lake and a large part of Utah went to the circus yesterday. The show was worth the money, no matter what one paid for it. In every ring and on every stage were feature acts, and the menagerie unquestionably is the finest collection of rare specimens that has ever been exhibited here. The feature acts are distributed so that each of the two ends of the big top has its marvels in the circus line, no less than the stages and the center rings.

It is conservatively estimated that yesterday's crowds aggregated 18,000 people the chances are that there were many thousands more.

A feature of circus day was the street parade. Two years ago Barnum & Bailey decided to try the experiment of cutting the street parade. But the people couldn't the street parade. But the people couldn't see it that way. The circus parade is a time-honored institution, and when the people were bereft of it at "one fell swoop." they demurred so strenuously that the red wagon felt the effect in the place where it hurts. So the circus parade

Yesterday's parade was a glittering pageant of gaudy finery and gorgeous trappings. There was complaint that the parade contained too many closed cages, but it was a great procession just the same.

Features of the Show.

Two women strapped in automobile cars pass down an incline of approximately 45 degrees. The mechanism formance. Two women strapped in advanced to the cars pass down an incline of approximately 45 degrees. The mechanism and the standards are so arranged that one of the cars—the first one—describes a circle in the air at a height of forty feet. The princess Wee Wee is a negro girl, 18 years old, who is only seventeen inches tall and weighs only seven and a half pounds. She is graceful of manner, and the only thing the side manager has to complain about, he says, is that she is such a flirt. The rest of the sideshow way while the first is in the parabola state. It is a thriller with a big T. The wonderful part of the whole arrangement is that the aerial car does a forward somersault, and not a back somersault, which would be comparatively easy. when that car hits the mound of mat-tresses it hits it for fair—there is no doubt about the weight of the car or the force with which it strikes.

Clean Cut Acts.

The best act in the show, according to the notion of the fellow who was sent out to exercise his judgment, is the tight wire performance of the four Nevaros. The act in which the shaggy dog, the pony and the donkey take part is astonishing. The work of the dog and the pony cannot be understood from the telling. Thirty-two elephants worked in the show Thirty-two elephants worked in the cars yesterday: eight were kept in the cars for various reasons. None of these, however, is seriously ill. The elephants work to perfection. Harry J. Mooney, George to perfect the cars worked of the cars worked of the cars worked of the cars worked of the cars. Denman and J. L. The Barnum & Bailey menagerie is school of learning. The rarest speci-mens of the beasts of the field are to be Probably the most interesting the collection is the herd of three giraffes. These wonderful animals claim the attention of the people for as long as an hour. The three giraffes with Barnum & Bailey came from Abyssinia.

The giraffe is extremely docile in cap-tivity and, after a time, becomes pos-sessed of a remarkable affection for his keeper. For a long time it was necessary to import forage for these beasts—for they are delicate and their loss is usually due to indigestion—but they have now become accustomed to forage plants which are grown in this country, and thus one ob-

There are other zebras in the menagerie, with which the animal men have experimented in an effort to pro-mote a clearly-defined marking, but thus far the attempt has been unsuccessful, and the more they are inbred or outbred the more sluggish become the colors, and it is believed that the lines will finally pass away entirely, leaving a sort of piti-ful creature with a murky yellow coat

Because the zebra from Abyssinia has two distinct horseshoes on his coat, he is a favorite with the men, who take it that he brings good luck in abundance.

The rhinoceros let doesn't say very much about himself, but lies down all the while in his tank and occasionally sticks his head out. They call him a "hippo" in the circus, but he is really a "rhino."

"He is the more interesting now," said one of the attendants, "because the Ringlings have lost theirs."

good, but they are good, nevertheless, and as they work in the show principally for the younger people, it is not for an old crust to pass criticism.

True it is again, that the Barnum & Bailey show this year has at least half a dozen features that are the most clean-cut, clever and altogether satisfying of any that have ever been brought hither.

Great Crowds Attend.

The Pet of Them All.

But the youngster that holds cards and big casino in the menagerie is the baby elephant. He was born on March 4, just one year before Taft won't take his seat as president. The worst that can be said against the baby elephant is that he was born in Wooonsock-et. That manifestly is a bad start in life, to be born in a side of placing a building in the direct center of the grounds, leaping the remainder of the grounds, leaping to the eye, as some more harmonious location, but the superintendent believes that the interests of the child come first.

Location of Buildings.

He also advocates a location with the largest part of the lot for playgrounds. Instead of placing a building in the direct center of the grounds, leaping the remainder of the grounds leaping to the eye, as some more harmonious location, but the baby elephant is that he was born in Wooonsock-et. That manifestly is a bad start in life, to be born in a bad start in life, to be born in a bad start in life, to be born in a bad start in life. phant is that he was born in Wooonsock-et. That manifestly is a bad start in life, to be born in a place with a name like that, but there are hopes that the little fellow will overcome his handicap. The baby elephant now looks like a slightly enlarged edition of the rubber slightly enlarged edition of the rubber elephants one buys in a drug store. He weighs about 200 pounds now, but his father. Mandarin, weighs 12,000 pounds. It is needless to add that the baby elephant isn't knee high to his father. The father is 70 years old, and is considered a youth, so the baby elephant has plenty of time to live and learn before he reaches even to live and learn before he reaches even the age of Mandarin.

the age of Mandarin.

One man, a picked man, has been put in charge of the baby elephant. It is his sole duty to look after the comfort of the kid, and woe betide him if he be lax in the service.

The baby has not grown an inch in height, according to his attendant, since he was born, but he has lengthened out half a foot—the attendant fears that he may become a sort of Dachshund ele-phant. He is of the African type, which are readily distinguished from the Indian type by the enormous size and shape of their ears. The baby elephant's daily diet

In the Side Show.

There is a feature in the sideshow of Barnum & Bailey's that is worth seeing —but only one. This is the Princess Wee attractions ought to have their sharpened and driven deeply and firmly into the ground.

The concert is worse.

Orphans Are Entertained.

Two hundred and more orphans were entertained at the circus yesterday afternoon. One hundred and fifty of these came from the St. Ann's orphanage, fifty from the State street and a dozen from Canyon Crest. They were the guests of the circus management, and they were the circus management, and they were royally treated. The street car fares of the children were paid by Councilman Ed. O'Donnell, and the toddlers were cared for by Miss Marjorie Mulvey and Mrs. J. McCooey. The Sweet Candy company provided a bountiful supply of sweets.

No Circus Arrests.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." This is the motto adopt-ed by Chief Tom Pitts in dealing with the circus crooks. As soon as any suspicious character showed himself at any place in the city he was taken to the county jail, where he was kept until the crowds had been disposed of. The excellent results obtained were most gratifying to all concerned.

The crooks and vags knew the police had them "buffaloed" and last night at midnight when the circus had left and its patrons were at home there had not been a single case of crookedness reported.

Notes About the Circus.

Ernest Wallace, a lad of 12, was, according to his mother, Mrs. D. Wallace of 326 K street, bitten by a monkey at the of 326 K street, butten by a monkey at the circus yesterday. The monkey, says Mrs. Wallace, was running at large and made a spring at the boy. The bite was in the left arm, but as the skin was not broken there is little likelihood that the youngster will suffer much. It's some distinc-tion, anyway, to be bitten by a circus animal, even if it does hurt.

John Ryan, representing the Ringlings, who now own the Barnum & Bailey shows, says that the show landed in Salt shows, says that the show landed in Salt Lake $35,000 to the bad. Ill weather, floods in the Missouri River district, long jumps, "bum" stands, where expenses ate up ten times the receipts, are said to be up ten times the receipts, are said to be responsible for this condition. Ryan, however, has no kick coming on the business in Salt Lake. If he doesn't drag $15,000 clear out of this town, it will not be for lack of eagerness on the part of people to give it to him.

If a tall gentleman in a silk hat who has something to do with the reserved seat business would graft less and serve his masters and the public more, it would be a great help to both, avoiding fights inside and outside the big top.

It was so hot in the big top yesterday afternoon that the gaspipe enclos the various sections were melted.

CHRISTENSEN HAS SOME IDEAS ABOUT BUILDING SCHOOLS

Superintendent Suggests That Child's Interests Be Considered in School Architecture — Several Principals Air Views on Various Subjects

The baby camel has had pretty nearly all the fame—notoriety, maybe—that he's entitled to. He was born in New York, and the Shriners spilled many a bottle of extra dry over his head, his nose and his coat, which, said the attendant, "was a damn shame when camels like water better, anyway, and we don't get a chance to cut into the grape more than once in a showman's lifetime, and that's pretty short."

There is a litter of baby tigers that are

Mr. Christensen believes that this condition can be remedied by properly locating the buildings on the available grounds. The location he thinks should be determined by the needs of the pupils in their outside recreation and its position should be such as to leave the largest part of the lot for playgrounds. Instead of placthe building should be long and narrow the lesser dimensions facing respectively north and south and each end having but two rooms and these on the corners. Thus all the rooms would obtain the sun light. The necessity of this is vividly shown by the fact that in the north rooms of the buildings flowers will not thrive, although children are supposed to spend the greater portion of each day in them from September 1.

Accompanying the report is a separate report from the principal of each building, in which suggestions and comments on the work of the past year are made.

The table above shows the result of the school census of 1908, with a comparison with the figures of 1907, showing a net gain of 714.

From the report which was completed yesterday it is clearly demonstrated that the southern section of the city is growing rapidly, while the northern practically at a standstill.

In the First and Second wards there was a net increase of 635, while in the other three wards the increase only amounted to seventy-nine. The Fifth showed a decrease of twenty-five. This decrease is accounted for by the moving of people with children from the high-priced property in the Fifth to more economical lotations. It is also due to the fact that during this time of the year many of the families living in that section are out of

The increase of eighty-nine in the Fourth ward is not material and the in-crease of only fifteen in the Third serves to increase that the population of that section is not increasing rapidly.
